Business Opportunities in the Logistics and Infrastructure Industry in Mexico

As Mexico wishes to develop into a logistical hub for the Americas and offer competition to US ports and the canal, lots of expertise and investments are needed. Mexico's infrastructure program calls for public and private investments to tune of US$ 46 billion which not include investments needed to build a new airport for Mexico City. One of the main goals of the program, according to President Enrique Peña Nieto, is to have four world-class ports in Mexico. The program emphasizes the need of promoting rail transport, both freight and passengers. In addition, the government announced an investment of nearly US$ 8 billion in water projects to be executed. The Dutch sector, with all its knowledge and expertise, awaits a rapid developing market and concrete business opportunities.

Logistics and Infrastructure event in The Hague

On March 27th, The Dutch embassy in Mexico is organizing a logistics and infrastructure event in The Hague. During an afternoon the embassy, CEO's of Dutch companies in Mexico and the Mexican Ministry of Transport and Communications (SCT) will present future development and business opportunities in the sector. Representatives of Boskalis and ULS, a successful logistics firm in Queretaro, will provide insights and practical information on how to do business in Mexico. A delegation of SCT will elaborate on the National Investment Program in Transport, Communications and Infrastructure as an overview of the developments during the current presidency.
